CONFERENCE HIGHLIGHTS

TE ARAHI MAIPI, MC, PRESENTER MĀORI TELEVISION

Te Arahī is a kura kaupapa graduate from Huntly who grew up wanting to be a rugby league star. He quickly realised that wasn't going to happen, so his dream shifted to being a sports commentator. For the past ten years he has lived his dream working on some of the biggest sporting events in the country. He is a presenter for Māori TV and also has his own radio show.

WETINI MITAI-NGATAI

Wetini Mitai-Ngatai is a leading kapa haka expert and cultural entrepreneur. He is best known by New Zealand audiences for his appearance in reality TV program, 'Kapa Haka: Behind the Faces' which followed him and kapa haka group, Te Mātārae I Ōrehu, as they prepared for the 2013 national kapa haka championships.

Wetini was born and raised in Te Arawa. His entrepreneurialism was evident from an early age, as a young man, Wetini always aspired to work for himself. By the age of 23, he already owned two fish and chip shops. It was a natural progression for Wetini to bring together his business acumen with his longstanding passion for kapa haka.

Wetini's early kapa haka experiences were with Ngāti Rangiwewehi and Tāhourāngi. In 1994 Wetini and Irirangi Tiakiawa Tāhourāngi started the group Te Mātārae I Ōrehu. As the leader of the group, Wetini has won the male leadership title at five Matatini Festivals, and Te Mātārae has qualified for the finals every time they have competed, winning the national kapa haka title twice.

In 2002 Wetini founded Mitai Maori Village in Rotorua, a Māori cultural performance and tourism attraction at Fairy Springs (Te Puna o Tūhoe), Rotorua. Through Mitai, Wetini wanted to provide employment for family and the wider community. It is now in its tenth year, and employs more than 100 people including thirteen full-time staff.

Wetini commutes between New Zealand and Dubai, following the success of initiative 'Snooze Cube,' in partnership with Larry Swan. The company rents unoccupied areas in airports and turns them into hireable sound proof snooze rooms for sleep deprived passengers in transit.

programme across the group of Wakatū with the mission to create high value science food and beverage applications to address nutrition, health and wellness challenges for consumers which is aligned with Te Pae Tāwhiti, the 500 year intergenerational plan of Wakatū.

Miriana is a trustee on Te Āwhina Marae in Motueka, Te Rūnanga o Ngāti Rarua and has recently taken the role as vice chair for the Psychotherapists Board of Aotearoa NZ.

RACHEL TAULELEI CEO KONO, NZ

With a passion for the primary sector, Rachel has a strong commitment to creating values-based business models focused on the sustainability of our country's resources - this is the hallmark of her innovative leadership.

Yellow Brick Road Ltd allowed Rachel to encourage change in the New Zealand fishing industry. Kono NZ presents an opportunity to live kaitiakitanga. To walk that fine line between culture and commerce.

Rachel demonstrates integrity in every aspect of her relationships with others, and has a reputation as someone who operates with an optimistic can-do perspective. Rachel prides herself on offering mentoring for youth, and sponsorship for young leaders.

HON TE URUROA FLAVELL

Ngāti Rangiwewehi (Te Arawa) and Ngāpuhi descent, Te Ururoa was raised in Rotorua and continues to live in his whānau homestead in Ngongotaha. He has been married for more than 25 years to Erana Hond-Flavell and is a proud family man, with five tamariki and one mokopuna.

He holds a Bachelor of Arts (Māori Studies and Anthropology) from the University of Auckland, a Master of Arts (Māori) from Waikato University and is a former student of Te Panekiretanga o Te Reo (Institute of Excellence in the Māori Language).

Trained as a teacher, Te Ururoa taught for many years at both secondary and tertiary levels. He has also held leadership roles in education as a school principal, CEO at a whare wānanga and a consultant to various government agencies.

Te Ururoa Flavell was first elected to Parliament as a Māori Party MP for the Waiariki electorate on 17 September 2005. He was successfully re-elected as the local MP in 2008, 2011 and 2014.

In July 2013, he became the Māori Party Co-leader. After the 2014 General Election and the signing of Te Tatau ki te Paerangi, a Relationship Accord with the National Party, Te Ururoa Flavell was appointed Minister for Māori Development (Te Minita Whanaketanga Māori), Minister for Whānau Ora (Te Minita Whānau Ora) and the Associate Minister for Economic Development (Te Minita Tuarua Whanaketanga Ohaoha)

From 2005 to 2014, he was Party Whip and a member of the Business Committee, Education and Science Committee and Standing Orders Committee. His primary portfolio interests, before becoming a Minister included: Education, Treaty of Waitangi issues, Tourism, Local Government, Internal Affairs, and Sport and Recreation.

The MP is well known for keeping physically active, competing in IronMāori, being a White Ribbon Ambassador (men campaigning against violence towards women), and speaking to reo Māori in the House.

ANAHA HIINI

Born and raised in Rotorua, Anaha is of Ngāti Tarāwhai, Ngāti Whakaue and Tūhourangi descent. Anaha attributes much of his success to a passion for the revitalisation and the teaching of the Māori language and its protocols. In his personal opinion, Anaha believes that the Māori language is in serious decline and hopes to contribute to the revival of the language in order for it to be spoken in a native manner comparable to 60 years prior when the language was being spoken by the native speakers of that time.

A very proud father to 7 children, Anaha continually strives to be a positive role model for his family and will continue to gain the knowledge and attributes required that will one day see him playing a positive and pivotal role amongst his iwi and amongst Maoridom alike.

HENARE JOHNSON

Ngāti Manawa, Ngāti Whare, Tūhoe oku iwi. Ngāti Koro te hapū. Painoaiho te marae. Ko Henare ahau. Originally from Murupara, I grew up on the eastside of Christchurch in a place called Aranui. My first job was as a cultural performer for tourists at the age of 15, which I continued to do from high school through to the end of University. In 2004 I began a journey with Tourism New Zealand to help infuse a more natural contemporary reflection of Māori tourism experiences to New Zealand's tourism marketing proposition. In 2009 I joined the Auckland Council, then Tourism Auckland which transitioned to Auckland Tourism Events and Economic Development (ATEED), to assist with growing Auckland's Māori tourism story with in the RWC2011 tournament. In 2014 the role broadened from specifically Māori tourism through to developing initiatives for Auckland's wider Māori commercial opportunities. This opened a secondment in 2016 with Air New Zealand to develop and grow the organisations relationships with the Māori community (socially, culturally, environmentally, and economically).

KAWANA WALLACE

Kawana is a computer science engineer and tutor at Te Pae. He built a prototype in December last year for visitors to access information offline through their phone app. The next step is to develop an advanced marketable version to be used nationally if the trial is successful. "I want to create real points of interest in real space. It hasn't been done in New Zealand." Wallace said the interactive traveller app would allow people to post points of interests of their journey on social media. "Its kind of augmenting their experience kind of like a guide but you don't give them that information online to search, they have to go out and search. "It's more meaningful if you go out and get it yourself. Investors would be needed to fund the project for Wallace to take it to a national platform.

ERENA MIKAERE MOST
