SPEAKER HIGHLIGHTS

Rahui Papa

Rahui Papa has represented his marae in the Waikato-Tainui tribal parliament since its inception in 1999 and was a member and then chair Te Arataura the executive arm of Te Whakakitenga o Waikato. He has been an integral member of the Iwi Leaders' Groups on Freshwater issues, Whānau Ora, and Justice. Rahui also led the Iwi Leaders Group on Te Pire Reo Māori, the Māori Language Bill.

Rahui grew up on and around his marae and papakāinga of Pōhara, in the Waikato. He has worked in broadcasting, teaching, and has served as a director and trustee on many boards, including the Tainui Waka Cultural Trust, Tainui Group Holdings, kōhanga reo, and lands and settlement trusts.

Rahui is perhaps best known as an expert orator and a recognised authority on Waikato reo, tikanga, and tribal history.

Tame Iti

Tame Iti (Ngai Tuhoe/Waikato/Te Arawa) is known as many things... Activist, Artist, Terrorist and Cyclist. Literally wearing his Tuhoe heritage on his face, Iti is hard to miss in a crowd despite being just 5ft 4" tall.

His 40 year history of controversial and theatrical displays of political expression have included pitching a tent on parliament grounds and calling it the Māori embassy, shooting a national flag in front of government officials and the curious spate of public meetings where he appeared with a ladder so as to speak eye to eye with officials who were seated on stage.

Pānia Papa - MC

Pānia has a vast array of experience in education and media – all with an emphasis on te reo Māori and Māori development. She is a former Māori Studies lecturer at the University of Waikato and has consulted to a number of education and corporate entities. Her broadcasting work includes producing, presenting, and translating for television including reversioning globally popular cartoons into Māori. She was a member of the independent panel that reviewed the Māori language strategy in 2011, and was on the Māori Language Quality Assurance Group overseeing the translation of Te Pire mō te Reo Māori.

Pānia is a board member of Te Mātāwai representing Tainui, and a member of the Waikato-Tainui Reo Advisory Group, working to implement the Waikato-Tainui iwi language strategy. She has reviewed iwi language strategies for Waikato-Tainui, Maniapoto, Raukawa and Ngāti Kahungunu and created strategies for Ngāti Hineuru and her marae community - Pōhara. Pānia is a director of Takatū Associates Limited focusing on innovations in Māori language education and broadcasting; and teaches te reo and tikanga Māori in Te Panekiretanga o te Reo (Institute of Excellence in the Māori Language), Kura Reo (National week-long reo intensives), Te Pae Kākā (Tainui paepae development programme) and wānanga whakangungu (professional development workshops) for teachers in Māori-medium education settings.
